

Eden Biltibo, MD, MS

Dr. Biltibo received her medical degree from Gondar University School of Medicine in Ethiopia, and her postdoctoral training included residency (including as chief resident) at Meharry Medical College, a master's in Clinical and Translational Science at the Medical College of Wisconsin, and a hematology/oncology fellowship at Vanderbilt University Medical Center.

Influenced by her own experiences, Dr. Biltibo is passionate about developing strategies to bridge health care disparities in multiple myeloma care. Her focus is on the equitable use of immunotherapeutics in myeloma and on improving racial diversity of clinical trial participants. She is a recipient of the 2022 the American Society of Hematology Minority Hematology Fellow Award, the 2022 Robert A. Winn Diversity in Clinical Trials Career Development Award, and a 2022 Multiple Myeloma Research Foundation Research Scholars Award.

Currently, Dr. Biltibo is an assistant professor at Vanderbilt University Medical Center in Nashville, Tennessee.
